According to a 2021 national survey, a record one in four Americans identify as "Nones" – having no religious affiliation.

This panel will feature Jewish, Christian and Muslim members of the Abraham's Table planning committee discussing what their faith traditions mean in a largely secular culture. The panelists will focus on how their religious beliefs, practices and customs help to define them and shape their lives.

This interactive program will also include participation by you - Abraham's Table supporters - through an opinion survey conducted in advance of the event as well as live audience comments during the program. The survey results will help shape our conversation.
